

Prepare for Lift-off!

Today was 'Astro-school' Day at Fosse Bank School and we were delighted to welcome Anton Vamplew, renowned astronomer to the school. Dressed as an astronaut, Anton gave a lively presentation about Space, followed by a hands-on interactive workshop with each year group.

Head of Fosse Bank, Gillian Lovatt-Young said,
"We always encourage inspirational teaching at Fosse and the children are clearly enthused by today's science learning with Anton and the Class Teachers."

In addition to special time with Anton, the children participated in class activities with Science themes which included building a skull to protect a water-balloon brain and making wind-powered vehicles with paper, straws and polo mints!
